What does it take for us to achieve sustainability?

We humans have a huge footprint on Our Beloved Earth Mother. It has always been this way. We are out of touch with what it takes for true sustainability. This is a recent memory lapse with the advent of the modern-technological age. We maintained ourselves, our communities and our environments for ages. We have forgotten. We need to remember. It is not merely the know-how. We have the means. We need the desire. For those of us who have the desire, we need to learn how to maintain that in a chaotic world. We need to fall back in LOVE with our Earth Mother. We need to inspire others to do the same, and to keep going ourselves. We will dedicate our time together on just this through both conversation and activity.
